AUDREY OF THE ALPS

Audrey Douville left her childhood home at 16 to pursue farming. Now as a young woman, accompanied by her boyfriend Maxime, Audrey undertakes five months of isolated living high in the French Alps. They are there to watch over 1,700 sheep and some goats. She is largely unprepared for what happens, as her romantic sojourn in the mountains becomes a struggle to deal with physical hardship, the cruelties of peasant-style farming, and conflicts with her partner. The film traces Audrey's spectacular journey across the French Alps.

BIG NAME NO BLANKET

In the 1980s, George Rurrumbu, front man of the Warumpi Band, embraced rock and roll, reggae and traditional culture to make public a new bush politics that awakened Australia to a third world in its own backyard. Popularly known for his energetic stage performances and charismatic character, his fans revered him as the 'black Mick Jagger'. He left a legacy that changed the face of Indigenous music, uniting his own people and promoting reconciliation. George Rurrumbu died a rock and roll legend in 2007 and there is no other quite like him. For the first time, this is his story.

BREAKER MORANT: THE RETRIAL

Breaker Morant: The Retrial tells the full story of Breaker Morant, from his legendary days as a horse breaker and iconic bush character, his marriage to Daisy Bates, to action and execution in the Boer War. Combining dramatic re-enactments shot on location in Australia and South Africa (where the actual events took place) with the current story of military lawyer Jim Unkles and the descendants of the convicted soldiers as they pursue the case in Australia and the United Kingdom. It is living history as we cross examine the historians and experts and examine the evidence as a new stage in this drama unfolds 110 years after the original court case.

BUILDING AUSTRALIA

BUILDING AUSTRALIA

We have built the Australian home and we have been built by it. In this six-part series John Doyle explores this intimate relationship between that most common and significant example of Australian building – the home – and the development of our unique character and way of life. Why have homes been built as they were, how have they been adapted to conditions and available materials, and how have they both reflected and influenced the lives of the generations who have occupied them.

KAKADU

At 20,00 square kilometres, Kakadu National Park is a sanctuary for countless endemic species, a pristine wilderness half the size of Switzerland. It is the home of the world's oldest continuous living culture. It's also the heartland of the last living dinosaur, the saltwater crocodile. Kakadu is home to about 1,500 permanent residents and visited by 250,000 visitors each year. Its remote and inaccessible location makes it almost a country unto itself where the harsh natural environment and the tyranny of distance present huge challenges in emergency situations. In this character-driven series, park rangers, police officers, health workers and residents will come to life in a place where man meets wild.

LICENCE TO KILL

Between 1986 and 1995, Victoria Police shot and killed 30 citizens. Pressure from lawyers, media and a concerned public forced changes from the top down – the rank and file underwent massive retraining in dealing with violent offenders and defusing violent situations. The killing rate dropped dramatically – in fact the program worked so well that, when the police budget needed pruning, it was cut as being no longer necessary and shooting incidents rose dramatically. Licence to Kill examines police shootings and the impact on all involved when your job description gives you the right to carry a gun, and to use it.

THE SEARCH FOR THE OCEAN'S SUPER PREDATOR

In the depths of Australia's Southern Ocean, a great white shark is savagely attacked by a far larger mystery predator. An electronic tracking device attached to its fin records a high-speed underwater chase before the shark and its tag are devoured. Two weeks later, after being carried in the belly of the unknown killer, the still functioning tag is excreted and washed ashore, withholding clues that could reveal the identity of the shark's super predator. WHITLAM

Wielding an orator's grandeur, a brilliant mind and a bulletproof self-belief, Gough Whitlam employed a "crash or crash through" approach to life and politics. He spent over 20 years fighting civil wars inside the Labor Party before eventually leading them to power. His government unleashed a wave of reforms across Australian society that was dizzying in its speed and scope. He was hailed as a Labor Messiah "but when he fell, he fell harder than any politician in Australian history". Gough Whitlam modernised the lives of Australian people, and for that he was more loved and more hated than any Australian leader before or since.

WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE? SERIES 5

Who Do You Think You Are? series 5 – Adam Hills, Asher Keddie, Michael Caton, Rove McManus, Don Hany, Lex Marinos, Susie Porter and (actor) John Howard go in search of their family history and along the way we meet a 15th century Maltese medieval magnate and a 17th century British Royal Musician. We learn about harrowing tales of Australian 19th century mental asylums and child mortality, through to 20th century Hungarian cold war politics and families separated by war and racism. We meet bushrangers, artists and soldiers. People who left their mark on Australia and their descendants.

WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE?

WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE? SERIES 6

Well-known Australians play detective as they go in search of their family history, revealing secrets from the past. Taking us to all corners of Australia and the globe are six stories of individuals seeking to find the definitive answer to where they came from. Along the way secrets are uncovered and histories are revealed – with each individual discovering that their ancestors form an integral part of not only their own identity, but that of the nation. Combining emotional and personal journeys with big-picture history, these inspiring and sometimes challenging stories remind us how Australians have come to be the people that we are today.

WILD AUSTRALIA

Come tour the majestic wonders of Australia's National Parks. From the arid desert of Australia's red centre, to the snow-covered peaks of the Alps, from the riches waiting to be discovered in the waters of Western Australia's shark coast, to the lush jungles of the Daintree on the opposite side of this vast continent, and to the isolated rarities found only in Tasmania. Australia's National Parks are home to some of the world's greatest treasures. This glorious five-part series shot in full HD and using world-class cineflex technology, is a co-production between Wild Fury in Australia and Moers Media in Germany.
